

Dear Montgomery County Council Members,

Have you considered the citizens who were born with or who have acquired health issues and that these injections could make them one of the statistics on the VAERS website? I have a family member with one open artery who cannot afford a blood clot, which is a known side effect. His cardiologist has recommended that he not take the experimental injection. Is he not entitled to all the freedoms of someone who willingly participated in the medical study by being able to eat his meals out, when he lives alone and is limited in the meals that he can cook? Do you represent all the citizens of Montgomery County, or just the ones who made the decision to be injected without any published study results?

I am opposed to any regulation that violates the US constitution, as the recent Supreme Court ruling demonstrates.

There are no scientific studies proving that these restrictions would be effective. To date, the experimental injection is not preventing transmission or infection, and the side effects are not fully known. The side effects that are known include 21,382 Deaths; 113,303 Hospitalizations; 110,785 Urgent Care; 158,762 Doctor Office Visit; 23,713 Myocarditis/Pericarditis; 36,758 Permanently Disabled, 24,344, according to the CDC VAERS reporting.

The infection rate is peaking and there are known effective treatments.

You would be creating more of a police state.

The US signed on to the Nuremberg Code after WWII precisely to prevent this type of legislation. This would be a direct violation of the international treaty, which trumps any country's laws.

Sincerely,

Charlene Hoagland
